Snowplow Damages Cars; Doctor Hurt

A snowplow of the state highway department caused damage to two automobiles and injuries to Dr. R. H. Carmichael of Tinley Park late Wednesday afternoon.

The snow plow operated by Otto Probenz of Homewood was coming south on Cicero avenue near Oak Forest cleaning snow and ice off the pavement and was going about 30 miles an hour. Instead of throwing the snow to the right hand side of the pavement the plow was hurling the snow to the left across the north bond lane on which cars were running.

Late in the afternoon Dr. Carmichael had been asked by Supervisor Otto Zebelt of Bremen township to make a call on a sick person in the vicinity of Oak Forest.

The doctor was on his way to the home of the sick one and was going about 30 miles an hour north on Cicero avenue in a Ford sedan and when he was about opposite the snow plow a heavy charge of frozen snow and ice was scooped up by the plow and hurled with terrific force against the front and side of the doctor's car. The shatter proof glass windshield of the car was literally blown to bits and struck the doctor in the face. He was momentarily stunned and suffered numerous cuts in his face and on his fingers. He was wearing glasses at the time and they were broken. He sustained a cut close to one eye. He was able to stop the car and got out unaided. He found that the sudden avalanche of ice and snow had broken the window in the door on the driver's side and also smashed the right hand head light. Most of the snow and broken glass was piled up in the rear seat.

Another car driven by Wm. Dommer of Chicago was directly in the rear of the doctor's car and also received part of the avalanche of ice and snow which smashed the windows on the left hand side of the car but the driver escaped injury.

The freak accident was witnessed by Wm. Stockman of Tinley Park, foreman of the highway patrol. He finally succeeded in getting the driver of the snow plow to stop. The driver did not know what havoc his snow plow had wrought and had kept right on going.

After the accident Dr. Carmichael drove home and administered first aid treatment to himself and then drove to the English Brothers garage in Tinley Park to have the car cleaned of its load of snow and ice and glass. The mass was so tightly packed into the rear seat that it had to be picked out in pieces. Mr. James English and his brother also suffered cuts on their hands while picking out the broken glass. After the car was cleaned up, Dr. Carmichael completed the sick call he was on his way to make when the accident happened.

Wednesday was a jinx day for Dr. Carmichael. In addition to the accident, he had the misfortune to drop a gold watch he has had for over 30 years and broke it.

Morning Star Mission to Observe 23rd Birthday

The country famous "Morning Star Mission" of Joliet and its also famous founder, Supt. Peter McCarthy, have labored for 23 years in the great field of the Master and this notable birthday will be celebrated for three days with wonderful programs, beginning on November 18 when the principle speaker will be Rev. G. C. Casswell. On November 19th Rev. C. E. Crawford is to bring the anniversary message. On the closing day, November 20th Rev. E. E. Hastings will speak. All the friends of the Mission are invited to attend these services.

Frank King Takes Over Chi. Orchestra

Mr. Frank King of Palos Park has taken over an orchestra in Chicago known as "The Grundy Chicagoans" and is now known as Frank King and His Orchestra. Mr. King is an old hand at directing orchestras and has had much broadcasting experience. They have signed up for a winter engagement in Chicago with a dancing school. On November 26th they will play for a dance in the Palos Community Club house.

To Present Play In Green Garden

The Young People's League of St. Peter's Evangelical church of Green Garden announces the presentation of "Closed Lips", a comedy in three acts by Lillian Mortimer, on the evening of November 29th and also on the 30th at 7:30 o'clock in the Green Garden Town Hall. The cast of twelve includes the Misses Tillie and Lillie Wischover, Ella Honsbruch, Adeline Subber, and Selma Webbink and Messrs. Melvin Albers, Clarence Harnack, Ervin Wagner, Gilbert Honsbruch and Chester Schlottmann. The drama is rich in humor and pathos. The Three Aces of Mokena will present the intermission entertainment.

Mokena School News

There will be no school November 24th, Thanksgiving Day and November 25th the day following.

The next basketball game will be played December 2nd. The grades will play the Frankfort grades and the high school will play the Joliet Freshmen.

Our school paper unintentionally overlooked the part taken by the Garden Club in the matter of beautifying our school grounds. We wish at this time to give recognition to this organization for their untiring efforts to help make our school grounds beautiful.

Wednesday morning Miss Doig's first and second grade had charge of the assembly program. The program was as follows:

1. Song "Come Ye Thankful People", all.
2. "The First Thanksgiving" Hyacinth Rinke, Deletta Werner, Gordon Benson, Marylis Krapp and Edwin Mau.
3. Song "Thanksgiving".
4. "Over the River and through the Woods", Hobart Meyer, Kenneth Benson, Robert Homerding, Walter Soiness, Nick Hieman, and Edward Tierney.
5. Song "Lolly Pop Lane", Marlys Krapp.
6. Thank Thee" reading Violet Stanger.

Russell McCleary of New Lenox Dies

Russell McCleary, 39 years old, died at his home in New Lenox on Monday morning after an illness of four months.

Mr. McCleary came to New Lenox from Letts, Iowa fifteen years ago. He was employed as a signal man for the Rock Island railroad during that time, but recently worked in Peoria.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lillian McCleary; one daughter, Dorothy, one son Robert; his mother Mrs. W. H. Turner; two brothers, Roy of Lockport and Ralph of Letts, Iowa and two sisters, the Misses Ruth and Grace McCleary.

The funeral was held from the Sonntag Funeral Home in Joliet on Wednesday afternoon to the New Lenox Methodist Episcopal church where services were held. The body was then sent to Letts, Iowa for burial.

Former Will County Resident Dies in Iowa

Mrs. Flora Gorham, a daughter of early Will County settlers, died Tuesday afternoon at her home in Dunlap, Iowa.

Mrs. Gorham was born in the Maple road homestead of Mr. and Mrs. George Van Duser, east of Joliet, February 7, 1863. George Van Duser had come to Joliet as a boy, from Elmira, New York, and his wife was born in Rutland, Vermont. They were married in Joliet.

On February 7, 1883, her 20th birthday, Flora Van Duser became Mrs. Frank Gorham. The groom was also a native of Will County, having been born in Hadley. After the wedding ceremony, the husband went to Iowa to furnish a home and returned to take his wife to live there.

Mrs. Gorham died three years ago. Mrs. Gorham is survived by two sons, George and Dwight; two daughters, Miss Grace Gorham and Mrs. Ace McDoe and 14 grand children, all of Iowa. A brother, Edward Van Duser of New Lenox, also survives and many nieces and nephews, among them, Mrs. Edward Corlett, of Joliet.

Mrs. Gorham had been ill for several months before she died. Funeral services were conducted at Dunlap Thursday.

NOTICE

On account of Thanksgiving being on our publication day next week, we will go to press Wednesday night. All news and advertising matter must be in no later than Tuesday night. Any material received later will be held over until the next week.

Orland Legion Post Takes Hand In S. W. Location

At a meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce at the American Legion Hall in Orland Park last week with members of the post present it was agreed by the committee previously appointed by the Orland Park Legion Post, to go on record as favoring the completion of the three miles of paving on the Southwest highway in Cook County.

The stretch from 142nd street south to the Will County Line has been surveyed and all plans completed, the right of way has been appraised, but for some reason the Cook County Board has not advertised for bids on building same.

Mayor Wm. Kollman of Orland Park has received from the Chicago Regional Planning Association a map showing a new route going west of Orland Park, but why that suggestion enters now, no one seems to know, as no surveys have ever been made on the proposed route.

Mr. Kingery of the Regional Planning Association has stated several times lately that the traffic on the Southwest Highway was not what was expected, but the local leaders point out the fact that the bridge across the canal at Palos was only completed this week and it would be an impossibility to judge traffic with an incomplete road. They also state that the road is not properly marked as yet and that at 74th and Western avenue, it's starting point, there are no identifying signs.

Bremen School Boards Plan To Raise New Funds

All of the school boards in Bremen township met in the Tinley Park school to discuss ways and means of raising money with which to keep the schools of the township open. Another meeting will be held in Midlothian within two weeks. It is understood that efforts will be made to get property owners to buy school notes which the county will accept in payment of taxes.

Tinley Park Legion Aux. Unit

Mrs. Wm. B. West, Publicity Chairman

The American Legion Auxiliary, Tinley Park Unit No. 615, held its regular meeting on Friday, November 11th, at the American Legion Community Hall with members of Tinley Park Legion Post as its guests. The meeting was called to order by President, Frances Rowden. Except for a few important matters, all business of the meeting was dispensed with.

In the absence of Commander Jim Barry, the Post was represented by Vice-Commander Wm. Mabey, who delivered a short talk. Service officer Charles Wallin, evoked a discussion by the members present regarding family relief.

In response to the appeal made by Mrs. Edmund Dowd, State Hospital Chairman for the Fourth District, it was decided by the Unit to contribute with other Units in the Fourth District, to the fund for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners for the convalescents at the Orland Convalescent Camp.

It being Armistice Day the Unit entertained the Post members with a short program, as follows: Reading by Mrs. Albert Felten, entitled "The Anniversary of Armistice Day." A lovely piano selection by Marion Mabey. A song entitled "A Rose in No Man's Land" was sung by Mrs. Adolph Ceithaml, Mrs. Herman Freitag, and Ruth Vivian Freitag with Mrs. John Swisher at the piano. Ruth Vivian was dressed as a Red Cross Nurse and she certainly was a stunning looking little nurse. An appropriate recitation by Jackie Freitag and Charles Wheeler. Mrs. John Swisher read a poem entitled "My Father was a Soldier."

Following the program refreshments were served. The tables were decorated with red, white and blue crepe paper runners and at each end were red, white and blue candles in attractive holders. The center piece was a large cake with white frosting. The baker skillfully decorated the cake with colored frosting. In the center of it was an American flag and across the top and bottom was written "Armistice Day November 11th, 1932." The favors were small American flags placed in red candy holders. After the refreshments bunco and cards were played by all for which there were a number of prizes.

Niagatri Girls Club Activities

The Niagatri Girls enjoyed a rare treat last Saturday night, in the form of a delightful birthday party given by Miss Helen Hirsch, in honor of her cousin Eileen Mohr's sixteenth birthday. Assisting Helen were her mother, sisters, and the many aunts in this family.

This party was a complete surprise on Miss Eileen. The members of the club with their leader sat quietly in the front room of the Henry Voss residence, where the party was held, waiting patiently for the arrival of Eileen who had purposely been taken for a short walk. When she finally approached the front steps a series of "Shush, -- don't talk, --she'll hear you, --be still", came floating from the room in stage whispers, but with the opening of the door, dead silence reigned for just one moment, and then "SURPRISE" was shouted with such volume that Eileen nearly collapsed.

It was an excited and happy group of girls who gathered around MISS SIXTEEN. The evening was spent in playing BUNCO. After the game was over and the lovely prizes awarded, Eileen was asked to open her birthday packages which up until this time had been tactfully concealed behind a large chair. The gifts were all useful and very much appreciated by Eileen. The home was beautifully decorated in the club colors of pink and blue.

A most unique feature was a cluster of sixteen pieces of loaf sugar suspended from the light fixture over the table, on different lengths of ribbon, symbolic of "SWEET SIXTEEN". A duplicate of this was found in the front room, the same having been used some few years ago at the party of one of the aunts. (How many years? --Well we don't know!)

The color scheme was carried out all over the dining room; the tables were banded in frilled strips, the place cards were adorable, out of sugar loaves. A pretty hand made paper cap was found at each place, and these were worn by the girls thru-out the rest of the evening. Before partaking of the delicious refreshments, Eileen performed the usual ceremony of lighting the candles on her birthday cake, which graced the center of the table. Following this Mrs. Swisher read a poem she had been requested to write. Here it is,

To Eileen on her Sixteenth Birthday sixteen years ago today.

You were mighty small;
Hardly thought just at that time,
You could grow so tall,
Mother looked at you with pride,
Daddy loved you too.
Both dreamed of the many things,
They would do for you.
Time does fly, so folks will say,
How these years have flown;
Far from baby-hood you stand,
A young lady grown.
Eileen may you always stay,
As you are tonight,
Pure and sweet and happy,
As the stars are bright;
May this be the glad beginning,
Of your happiest of years,
And God grant you all His sun-shine,
And forget to send you tears.

While gathered around the table the girls sang, told jokes, and gave the NIAGATRI CHER, led by their cheer leader, Catherine Hirsch. A most enjoyable evening was spent by all, and how it was appreciated.

Eileen wishes to thank every one who helped make her birthday such a happy one.

The out of town guests were, Jane Fuehrney, of Burnham, Ill., and Pauline Gaule, of Blue Island.

Girls don't forget that we are going to the "FORTY and EIGHT" Friday, December 2, 1932. Get busy on your part of the program, for we want this to be one hundred percent.

May Cut License Fee

In keeping with cuts made in various other lines, the village board of Tinley Park is considering the reduction of the rates on village vehicle licenses from $5 per year to $3 per year.

Three Aces Are In Demand

The Three Aces of Mokena consisting of Carlos Hall and his sisters Alva and Wanda who are now broadcasting Hawaiian guitar music every Thursday night on the Joliet Musical College program over radio station WKBB of Joliet, are getting popular and are being dated up for weeks ahead for various church and P. T. A. affairs in Will and Cook Counties. They are talented and musical and their musical efforts have met with a hearty response.

They are ready to accept bookings for appearance on any program of a social event.

The children also played bunco and there were prizes for them too. The program was in charge of Mrs. John Swisher as a member of the Committee on Americanism. Our hearty thanks to those members who worked so hard to make the meeting a success. Both the Post and Unit were well represented. Remember our next meeting, Friday, November 25th at 8:00 p. m., sharp. Mark your calendar NOW for November 25th.

Mokena Banker Marries Escanaba, Michigan Girl

A simple, but pretty wedding took place last Saturday morning November 12th at 10:30 o'clock in Escanaba, Michigan, when Miss Ethel Stonecliff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Stonecliff, of Escanaba and Mr. Everett Cooper, son of Mrs. Kate Cooper of Mokena were united in marriage.

The wedding took place in the parsonage of St. Patrick's Catholic church with the Rev. Father Mockler officiating. The ceremony was witnessed by the immediate families.

The bride was attractively gowned in jade green velvet, with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of yellow mums and white pom-poms. She was attended by her cousin, Esther Thompson who wore a pale green velvet gown and carried an arm bouquet of white mums and yellow pom-poms. The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Melcolm. The ring ceremony was used.

Following the wedding ceremony a reception and dinner was held in the home of the bride's parents, covers being laid for forty-five relatives and friends. The rooms were beautifully decorated in green and yellow, the bride's chosen colors. Flowers and paper streamers in both colors were used. The dining room was especially lovely in decoration. The table was graced by a pretty wedding cake and flowers, each place being marked by a miniature bouquet of yellow pom-poms. Many lovely and useful gifts were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Cooper left by motor the same day for their future home in Mokena where they arrived Monday morning and they have gone to housekeeping in the Hirsch home on Front street. They will be at home to their many friends after November 24th.

Mrs. Cooper was a popular young lady of Escanaba. Mr. Cooper is the assistant cashier of the Mokena State Bank which position he has held for a number of years and is greatly respected. Their many friends wish them much happiness in their wedded life.

Opening Basketball Game Won by Mokena 44 to 12

The first basketball game of this season was played in the Mokena school gym Wednesday night of this week when the Mokena High School team played the Beecher High School team, defeating the latter with a score of 44 to 12.

The next game will be December 2nd when the Joliet Freshmen team play the Mokena High School team at the Mokena gym.

These teams are members of the Illinois High School Athletic Association.

Hold Stork Shower

Mrs. A. C. Hall and daughter, Mrs. S. Nebeker entertained in their home in Mokena Tuesday afternoon at a stork shower in honor of Mrs. Willis Hall.

Bunco was the afternoon diversion, three tables playing with prizes being awarded to Mrs. Albert Hentsch and Mrs. Andrew Wachter who in turn presented them to the honored guest.

A large stork graced the table on which were placed the many lovely gifts. The dining room table was spread with a lace cloth upon which was a lovely bouquet of tea roses and tall pink candles at either end. A dainty luncheon was served.

Out of town guests were: Mrs. A. Smith and daughter, Ruth of Chicago.

Fair (Enough) and Cooler

ILLUMINATING REMARKS

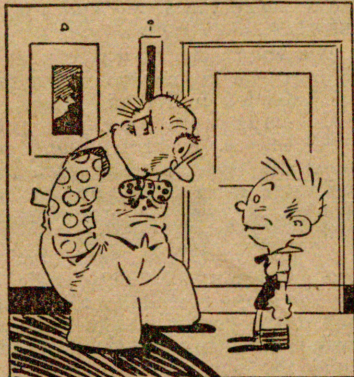

He—Let's go out on the porch and talk, if you don't dislike the dark.
She—Not at all, and, besides, your remarks are always illuminating, Mr. Sparks.

SYMPATHY

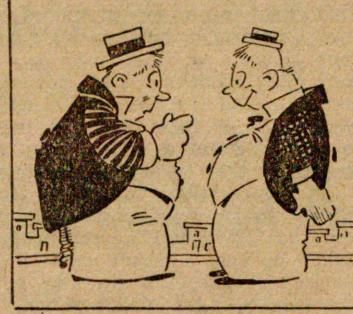

Bird (outside)—Poor fellow, he must be a dangerous criminal to be locked up like that!

CAN'T BE COUNTED NOW

"What marvels education has accomplished since the time of Balaam, the prophet."
"Just what do you mean?"
"Well, in his day only one ass could talk!"

FOOLISH TALK

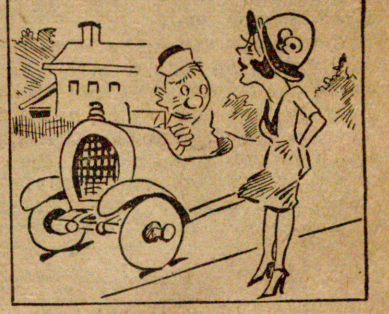

"Your misfortunes come from your raising the devil all your life."
"How foolishly you talk. The devil was grown up long before I came on the scene."

HE KNEW WHAT TO DO

"When the meek inherit the earth, what do you think they'll do?"
"I know what they'll have to do."
"And what's that?"
"Get the fiercest man they can find to run it."

WHEEL TRACKS WON'T DO

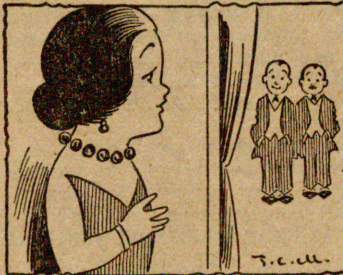

Reggie—Really, Miss Sharpe, I expect to make footprints on the sands of time.
Miss S.—You won't make them by riding in an automobile, Mr. Sapp.

OPPOSITES ATTRACT

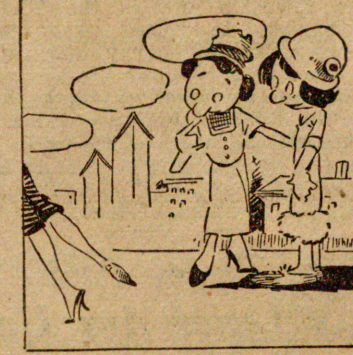

Hubby—There's no doubt that opposites attract.
Wife—Aren't we examples of it, you boob?

HER COLD FEET

"Did you get cold feet when you first thought of asking your wife to marry you?"
"No—got 'em after I married her."

ROASTS 'EM IN PARIS

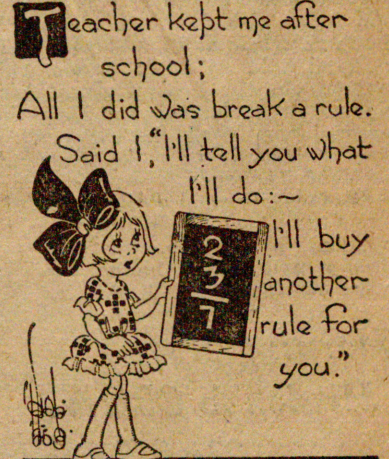

First Lady—You shouldn't have reproved those two flappers in one another's presence.
Second Lady—I always roast chickens in pairs.

NO DOUBT

Monk—I'm going into the shoe shining business.
Snake—More monkey-shines, eh?

ANOTHER RULE NEEDED

Teacher kept me after school; All I did was break a rule. Said I, "I'll tell you what I'll do:— I'll buy another rule for you."

LONG TIME TO WAIT

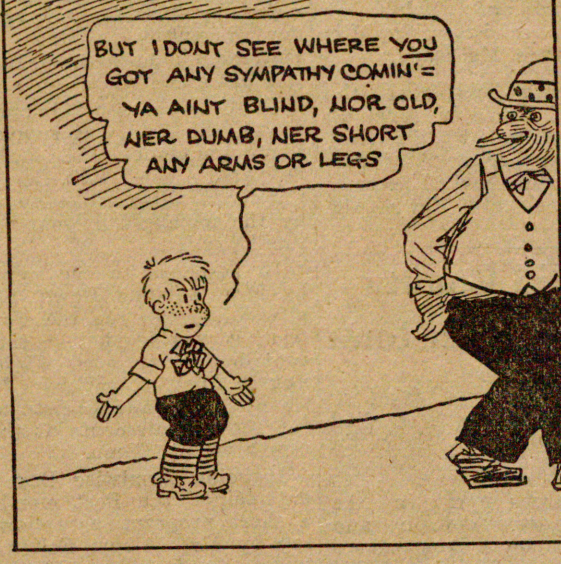

She—I was reading of a person who went forty days without food.
He—Yeh—waiters are terribly slow in some places.

THE CHILDREN'S STORY

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

PETER RABBIT'S LAST DOUBT IS CLEARED AWAY

Though you say you believe that a thing is so, And you do your best to believe, you know, It will happen a doubt in your mind will creep And quite refuse to be put to sleep.

A LITTLE doubt like this will keep right on bothering, and the only way in which it can be put to sleep is by finding for yourself the proof that what you are trying to believe is so. Peter Rabbit said that he believed all Lightfoot the Deer had told him about his wonderful horns, and how they had grown in a single summer. He did believe it while he was with Lightfoot, for hadn't Jumper the Hare said that it was true. But when Peter got back to the dear Old Brier Patch and thought it all over doubt crept into his mind in spite of him. He told little Mrs. Peter all about it. When he had finished she looked at him queerly.

"Peter," said she, "if someone should come along and tell you that he could take his head off and put it back on again, I believe you would believe it. It is my opinion that Lightfoot was stuffing you and that Cousin Jumper was backing him up just to see how big a yarn they could make you swallow."

"But, my dear, I tell you that I saw the rags of the covering that had been on those horns while they were growing," protested Peter.

"Perhaps you did and perhaps you didn't," retorted unbelieving Mrs. Peter Rabbit. "I don't doubt you saw rags of some kind on Lightfoot's horns, but it will take more than his word to make me believe that those are new horns grown this last summer. It doesn't sound reasonable. Now, does it, Peter?"

"No, it doesn't," confessed Peter; "but there are so many things happening all the time that don't sound reasonable that I don't know when to believe a thing and when not to."

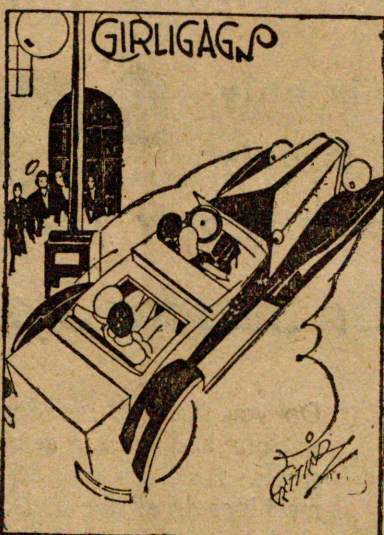

Peter had planned to go about among his friends and tell them all about Lightfoot's new horns, for he suspected that few of them knew about them. But after his talk with and polished, and when later Peter tried his teeth on it he found he made no impression on it. At once he began to dig around it to see what the rest of it was like. It wasn't long before he found that there were other points. A thought flashed into Peter's head, and he made the soft earth fairly fly as he dug, for Peter was growing more and more excited.

At last he had uncovered all of the queer stick with several points. It wasn't a stick at all. It was one of Lightfoot's old horns. There was no question about that. There it lay right in front of him. Peter gave a great sigh of pure happiness. That bothersome doubt in his mind had been put to sleep forever. Lightfoot had said that his old horns had dropped off somewhere, and here was one of them to prove it.

"Lightfoot's story was true!" cried Peter joyfully. "Now Mrs. Peter will have to believe it. If she don't I'll make her come over here and see this horn for herself. When you tell a story that's hard to believe there is nothing like having proof that it is true." Peter jumped up in the air, kicked his long heels together and then started for home, lipperty-lipperty-ly, to tell Mrs. Peter what he had found.

Decorative Maps

Seventeenth-century Colonists made use of the map as a decorative feature, though except in the case of the "emblazoned" ones advertised by the cartographer, they were unconscious of its decorative possibilities. The map hung from rollers in their main rooms.

CUT OF THE ORDINARY

BOIL a cauliflower and drain. Add a pinch of salt and nutmeg, a dash of vinegar to a pint of the water in which the cauliflower was cooked. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter and when it is light brown, add to the sauce. Pour over the cauliflower on a hot platter and serve.

Grilled Sardines.

Grill half a dozen sardines in a hot pan and pour over them melted butter which has been thickened with a little flour, moisten with hot water, add a little vinegar, dash of mustard, salt and pepper. Pour hot over the sardines.

Lentil Salad.

Boil two cupfuls of lentils until tender, season with garlic cut fine or with chives and serve on lettuce leaves with a good seasoned french dressing.

Peaches With Grape Juice.

Stew fresh peaches, remove their skins and cover them with grape juice and allow them to stand two hours. Drain them, place them in a dish in which they are to be served and cover them with sugar flavored with vanilla. Take the grape juice, add sugar to taste, boil up and pour over the peaches.

Salad Beaucaire.

Chop coarsely, celery and endive, season with oil, vinegar, mustard, and let stand for an hour before serving. Just before going to the table add chopped boiled ham, a sour apple diced, moistened with a little tarragon vinegar and mayonnaise.

Mutton With Vegetables.

Trim mutton cutlets and place side by side in a saucepan. Cover with well seasoned stock and simmer for an hour and a half. Take equal quantities of turnips, onions, celery and twice the amount of carrots. Fry in butter until they begin to color, beginning with the carrots, then the celery, onion and then turnip. When all are done simmer in a little stock. Place the cutlets on a hot platter with a heap of the vegetables in the center. Serve with mashed potatoes.

PENNY THINGS

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE little steps of little feet go romping here and there; I hear them in the crowded street, I hear them ev'rywhere; And little feet find life a song and youth a time of play. The journey short, however long, with joys along the way. The street an alley, little more, the children are content; They find the windows of a store a land of wonderment. Though stories tell of queens and kings, and silk and lace and ruff, The windows full of penny things are wonderful enough.

I wish that we could go our way as little children, too, And find our pleasure in today, as little children do.

They have their dreams as well as ours, their castles gilt and glass, And yet they pause to pick the flowers that blossom where they pass. However bright the rainbow gleams, how great the pot of gold, The children know that dreams are dreams—but here's a hand to hold, And here's a window and a toy, and here's a top that sings; They never overlook the joy God puts in penny things.

We build our castles in the air, our battlements in Spain, But, if we never journey there, the other joys remain. So let us do as children do, who dream of fairyland, And yet who know the pleasure, too, of pleasure close at hand. I hope we never dream so much, as through the world we go, Whatever heights we ever touch, whatever depths we know, We never feel the thrill of yore, the thrill that childhood brings. Before the windows of a store just full of penny things!

Lake Erie

The Eries were a numerous tribe of Indians who occupied the shores of the lake, which takes its name from them. The name in Indian means "wildcat."

Rich Pastures Planned for Holland Dairymen

The Zuider zee cut off now from the North sea is known as the Yssel lake, for that river empties itself into this great basin. The lake will presently turn fresh and hereafter will constitute an inexhaustible reservoir of fresh water to be tapped during summer droughts when all the miles upon miles of grassland round about have to be irrigated. Heretofore the necessity of using the semi-salt water of the Zuider zee has made every protracted dry spell a minor disaster to all this cow-milking country. It will take 30 years more to complete the great transition from salt water to dyke land. In behind the great sea-dykes two-thirds of the present area of the Yssel lake is to be dyked off and drained to make room for a million more cow-milkers, which means an annual increase in the output of cheese which staggers the imagination.

Handier With It

They were at the golf practice course, and the young woman was swinging valiantly at the balls, and missing most of them. Her husband stood it as long as his patience permitted, then he muttered under his breath:

"She ought to get a fly swatter!"

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

Get an ounce and use as directed. Fine particles of aged skin peel off until all defects such as pimples, liver spots, tan and freckles disappear. Skin is then soft and velvety. Your face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty of your skin. To remove wrinkles use one ounce powdered Saxalite dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. At drug stores.

Working Out Their Pledges to the Church

DUE to hard times, many members of the Washington Street Baptist church of Orange, N. J., were unable to make good on their pledges to a fund for the erection of a new parish hall. But more than sixty of them offered to work out the pledges in manual labor and some of this group are here seen hard at it. In the background with the plans is the pastor, Rev. Marple Lewis.

"Lightfoot's Story Was True!" Cried Peter Joyfully.

Mrs. Peter he changed his mind. You see doubt had crept in, and in spite of all he could do it stayed there. He tried to make himself believe that he believed that story, but that miserable doubt persisted. So, though his tongue fairly itched to tell the story of Lightfoot's new horns, he kept it still.

One night when Mistress Moon was shining brightly Peter wandered deep in the Green Forest until presently he found himself on the edge of a swampy place. It was the very place where Lightfoot the Deer had spent the winter when the snow was deep. Peter hopped along aimlessly. He was thinking so hard that he didn't watch his steps, and presently he stepped on something that hurt his foot.

"Ouch!" he cried, and looked to see what it was he had stepped on. Sticking out of the soft wet earth was what Peter at first thought was a sharp pointed stick. But when he looked a little more closely he saw that it was different from any stick he had ever seen before. The point was smooth

Chinese Missionary Sends Interesting Letter

This paper is in receipt of an interesting Chinese almanac and a lithograph picture of scenes in connection with the Japanese war against the Chinese last winter, also the following interesting letter from Rev. H. G. C. Hallock, missionary at Shanghai, China. The letter was written October 7th. The letter is as follows:

I am enclosing a Chinese lithograph of the late trouble in Shanghai, showing the Chinese artist's idea of how the Japanese soldiers and citizens shot women and innocent civilians at sight or how they bound them and took them away to endure unnamed shame and suffering. The center circle shows the 19th Army at close quarters with Japanese troops. Chinese like to make pictures of these sights but they can give but faint idea of the atrocities of the night of January 28th and the weeks following. The wild Japanese hoards went mad, that long and sadly to be remembered midnight, rushing along the narrow streets, smashing doors and windows, filling the Chinese with terror, slaughtering men, women and children. They were out on an orgy of destruction, frightfulness and death. They were exceedingly brave when they encountered unarmed men, women and wee children, but when they got through Chapel to where the Chinese troops the 19th Army—were on guard they found a stone wall of soldiers. Their mad advance was stayed. Then they were not so brave, but were a very angry, disappointed lot, for they had expected to take Shanghai at one stroke. Foiled in this they gave vent to their spleen in larger destruction. They brought oil and wood and built fires against or in larger houses and started huge conflagrations in many places in the district which they had occupied. As people fled from the burning houses they mowed them down ruthlessly. Over the district held by the brave Chinese troops they sent airplanes and dropped bombs setting the railroad station on fire, as also the greatest printing and publishing plant in all Asia—The Commercial Press. This was spite-work. As the days went by and the Chinese army still held out the Japanese became, if possible, more destructive and murderous. Since they could not get at and oust the soldiers they became more and more brutal to the innocent civilians and common people. Their brutality took such horrible forms that I simply dare not try to put it on paper. It seemed as though each Japanese were killing so as to be able to boast as to the number he had killed and the violence of his method of killing. They always tried to justify themselves in this saying they were doing it to protect their nationals. The Japs are good at making excuses for bad acts. The Chinese had been very trying with their anti-Japanese boycott and propaganda, but were guilty of nothing that would justify such savagery from the Japanese.

We were all very greatly surprised at the way the Chinese troops held their positions against great odds for 34 days and we have been more than surprised at the cowardice of the Japanese troops and their savagery. The Chinese had little modern training and equipment. The Japanese had most modern machinery and every equipment for war. Yet they, unlawfully, and at great danger to us, used the neutral International Settlement as a safe and easy base of operation, while the Chinese surprisingly respected the neutrality of the Settlement. The Japanese kept bringing reinforcements until they outnumbered the 19th Army and were enabled to nearly surround the Chinese who retired to their second line twenty miles from Shanghai. Truce was made and most of the Japanese troops have gone but many are strutting around Shanghai yet as tho they owned it. The Chinese wait impatiently for the League of Nations to come to their relief.

I am sorry to say that almost all my 800 Brownies lived in the burned areas, my Sunday School buildings were burned and my Brownies scattered. The stereotypes of my books and tracts were burned in the Commercial Press. My office, manuscripts, Church and Endeavorers safely passed through the ordeal, so I have yet much for which to praise God.

Yours in Christ's glad service,
(Rev.) H. G. C. Hallock.

Depression Hits

The Churches

One of the major disappointments of this period of economic depression is found in the fact that there has emerged no distinct and aggressive movement for church unity, points out "The Christian Century," leading denominational journal of religion. "The sentiment of unity has been developing for more than a generation. Denominational organization was definitely weakened during the World War. It entered a period of recrudescence just after the war, and was carried to its peak of prosperity by the speculative boom. When the general crash came it seemed evident that economic necessity would reinforce moral conviction and bring about not only local coalitions of churches, but a far-reaching program of interdenominational reconstruction. This has not occurred," continues "The Christian Century." "Denominational treasuries have been depleted. The funds for the missions have run dry. Many fields, both home and foreign, have been abandoned. Workers have been called home and dismissed from the service for lack of money. The functioning of the system has been curtailed to the barest semblance of its one time activity. But the structure of the system has been kept intact. And no strong voice has been heard calling for a reconstruction of the forms and fellowships of our Protestant churches."

About the Public Service Company:

Several outstanding facts about this Company probably are not as well understood as I think they should be. (1) It is purely an operating company and is not owned or controlled by any other company. (2) The majority of its stockholders live right here—it is "home owned". (3) All of its officers and employees live here. (4) Its future is irrevocably dependent upon the growth and prosperity of northern Illinois.

This Ace-High Flavor Wins At Any Bridge Luncheon

By Sarah Blackwell
Coffee Service Institute

SUMMER visitors are the inspiration for one party after another with each succeeding hostess outdoing the ones before her to make her party stand out above the rest.

Since bridge is so universally the form of entertainment, the hostess gains distinction by the refreshments she serves. For which of us can fail to call our party a success when guests demand our recipes for this or that? Very often the food which incites the envy of your friends is as economical as it is delightful. And it may have been achieved by the simple use of a familiar flavor in a new role.

Coffee, the nation's favorite at the breakfast table, makes a delicious refreshing iced beverage and offers us one of the most delightful and unusual flavorings for summer desserts.

Good coffee flavor, for beverage or sweet, begins with careful coffee buying. Choose the blend which suits your own taste and buy it freshly roasted and freshly and correctly ground for your method of making coffee—coarse for pot, medium for percolator, fine for drip. Buy only a week's supply at a time for scientific tests have shown that coffee flavor is a very elusive thing and is lost to the air very rapidly.

In making coffee, careful measurements are important. I use two rounded or four level tablespoons to each measuring cup of water for iced coffee. This quantity is double strength and allows for the dilution caused by the ice when the hot beverage is poured over it and also gives the best coffee flavor for desserts.

My favorite summer party, whether I'm hostess or guest, is the bridge luncheon with cards following the meal. The hostess has her kitchen worries well off her mind so they, at least, will not be responsible for her trumping her partner's ace, and guests going home to dinner after the party will not have their appetites dulled by late afternoon sweets.

ARMISTICE PROGRAM
AT ORLAND P. T. A.

The Orland Park P. T. A. meeting of November 10th was given over to an observance of the anniversary of Armistice Day. All business was dispensed with or conducted with the greatest of despatch and the balance of the evening devoted to an Armistice Program. The audience stood at attention during the pledge of allegiance to the flag after which they sang "Keep the Home Fires Burning". A reading, "Lest We Forget" was given by Mrs. L. H. Arnold and Jackie Schussler recited the poem "In Flanders Field". Rev. Paul Sanders offered a prayer in tribute to and in memory of our dead. Mrs. Adele Cooper rendered a piano solo "Il Trovatore" and "Lost Hope."

The boys acted their parts very well and the skit was very amusing. The singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by the audience closed the program. Mr. Baraney's room won the attendance prize.

In spite of the bad weather, president Arnold, past presidents Cooper and Cox and secretary Bessie Uthe attended the Tinley Park P. T. A., Fathers' Nite program and reported a very enjoyable evening.

Lester Kinney, Mr. Goldman, who wants to be a dude.
Martin Steinhagen, Larry, the police man.

Promise Boys Rare
Thrills

American Boy-Youth's Companion readers are due for a rare adventure thrill in 1933, according to word just received from America's favorite boy's magazine. Boys will welcome the news that a modern Robinson Crusoe story, in which two boys and a man battle with savages and build a civilization with their bare hands, is on the way.

In this story the three heroes escape into the depths of the Amazon jungles; there they are stripped and left to die by hostile natives; and there, from the natural abundance of the jungle, they build their fortress. From advance notices it's a story readers will never forget.

The American Boy-Youth's Companion for 1933. Adventures in all parts of the world; stories of school and college; helpful stories of the professions; sports interviews with famous coaches and players; vivid articles on travel and science.

We suggest The American Boy-

Lucille Cooper, Susie Smith, A girl who hasn't any money.
Lucille Reish, Mrs. Shiftless, who hates to sew.

Eleanor Cox, Mrs. Lightfinger, who spirits away coats.
Cyril Kay, Mr. Morrison, who loses a dress suit.

The Club will sell candy and pop corn to the audience. The candy will be home made and the pop corn will be of the very best kind. The club expects a very good attendance. There will be no admission charge.

Youth's Companion as an ideal present for that son, nephew, cousin and neighbor. It's a character-building, imagination-stirring present that renews itself every month in the year. An attractive gift card bearing your name will be sent to the boy if you request it. Subscription prices are only $2 for one year or $3 for three years. At the latter rate the magazine costs only a dollar a year. Mail your order direct to the American Boy-Youth's Companion, 550 W. Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan. Service on your subscription will start with the issue you specify.

SPECIAL .. only $665

This new floor lamp diffuses soft flattering light over the whole living room. It is perfect for bridge games because it illuminates without glare or shadows. (No other lamps need be used, either.) Under the pleated shade is a reflector that throws light up to the ceiling, carries it into every corner. A separate switch turns on direct light for reading. The base is three-candle style, beautifully finished in bronze with polished brass trim. The rayon shade comes in pastel green, rose, gold or rust. Now featured in the fall lamp displays at your Public Service Store . . . Other local lamp dealers are also having special sellings of lamps this month.

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

Several outstanding facts about this Company probably are not as well understood as I think they should be. (1) It is purely an operating company and is not owned or controlled by any other company. (2) The majority of its stockholders live right here—it is "home owned". (3) All of its officers and employees live here. (4) Its future is irrevocably dependent upon the growth and prosperity of northern Illinois.

Facts About the Telephone

Salisbury, Md., and Salisbury, England, were connected by telephone for the first time recently, when the Maryland city celebrated its 200th anniversary. The total distance of the call was 3,343 miles.

Not only are stockholders of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company located in every state of the Union and the District of Columbia, but also in about 75 foreign countries and United States possessions.

The most northerly telephone office in the world is located at Hammerfest, Norway, in the latitude of 70° 39' 15". It is a little office with a three-position switchboard and serves about 250 telephones. Calls have been put through from this office for Oslo and Bergen, and a few as far as England.

All of the short wave radio telephone facilities of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for overseas telephony are located at stations in New Jersey. The long wave transmitting station, on the other hand, is at Rocky Point, Long Island, N. Y., while the corresponding receiving station is at Houlton, Me.

October in Telephone History

- October 9—First two-way telephone conversation over a real line, Boston to Cambridgeport, 2 miles—1876.
- October 15—New York City's first dial telephone central office, "Pennsylvania," placed in operation—1922.
- October 15—First commercial telephone exchange in Idaho established at Hailey—1883.
- October 18—New York-Chicago telephone line opened—1892.
- October 21—Wireless telephone message from Arlington, Va., heard at Honolulu and Paris—1915.
- October 27—Regular commercial telephone service inaugurated between the United States and Australia—1930.

BROTHERS UNITED THROUGH TELEPHONE DIRECTORY

Forty-two years ago Andrew Brunhardt and his brother Joseph left home to seek their fortune. They became separated, and for years Andrew searched for his brother. One day recently he passed through Dubuque, Ia., and, following his regular custom, he looked up his brother's name in the local telephone directory—and found it. A reunion of the brothers followed.

DETECTIVE'S 400 TELEPHONE CALLS LOCATE WOMAN'S KIN

Penniless and tired after a long ride to Philadelphia, Mrs. Rebecca Cohen of Chicago suddenly forgot the name and address of her brother whom she had come to visit. She was taken to a representative of the Traveler's Aid Society, and later gave Detective Lieutenant Greenhaugh two names she thought might be her brother's. The detective made 400 telephone calls before he got a clue. Then he talked with a man who knew another man who had a sister in Chicago, and this led to the finding of the brother, Morris Dubis, who had not met his sister for many years.

TELEPHONE CALL RESTORES JEWELS, BRINGS REWARD

It cost Thomas Kane, unemployed farmhand, fifteen cents the other day to restore a valise containing $25,000 worth of jewelry to Mrs. Robert T. Stone of Greenwich, Conn.—and he had to borrow the fifteen cents at that, in order to make a telephone call. While hunting for a job, Kane discovered the valise, and finding a name tag on the bag, he got in touch with the owner by telephone. She came to the scene at once in her car, and Kane received a substantial reward.

CHILD'S EMERGENCY CALL BRINGS HELP

In a time of emergency, little three-year-old Dexter Peterson of Creighton, Neb., knew just what to do. He went to the telephone and asked the operator to get his father. This was the message he had for his father: "Daddy, come home, mama is lying on the floor and I can't get her up!"

Rudolph Peterson hastened home and found his wife prostrate on the floor in a faint, with Dexter and his little brother standing by her crying.

The boy's mother before her marriage was a telephone operator at Wausau, Neb., where her father formerly was manager of the telephone company.

MAKES CALL TO AUSTRALIA DURING TRAIN STOP

While a Canadian Pacific railroad train en route across the continent was making a ten minute stop at Schreiber, Ontario, divisional point between Chapeau and Fort William, the other day, an Australian government official went into a telephone booth in the station and put in a telephone call to his homeland. This was accomplished while the train was making its customary stop, and it was not necessary to hold the train for the government official to send his important message to Australia.

The Golden Rule Camp of Royal Neighbors held its regular monthly business meeting in Urch hall Wednesday night. Mrs. Myrtle Alexander, the oracle, presided.

Mrs. Fred A. Francis entertained at the November meeting of the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church in her home, last Thursday. The meeting which was in charge of Miss Harriett Francis, was opened with a sacred song service. An interesting talk on "With Children of America", was given by Dr. Jeanette Holt. Mrs. Martha Specking and Miss Freida Zumstein sang a group of duets. They were accompanied by Mrs. Merna Sievert pianist. The 23rd psalm was repeated in unison followed by prayer led by Mrs. Samuel Moore, program chairman. At the close of the business session which followed, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Miss Henrietta Farrer.

Mrs. Earl Strausburg entertained a group of friends at a 1 o'clock dinner in her home on Cedar street Thursday. The guests were seated at one long table in the dining room. It was centered with a bouquet of fall flowers. Those present were: Mrs. Ethel Robinson, Mrs. Cora Robinson of LaGrange, Mrs. Helen Robinson of Maywood, Mrs. R. O. Grant of Galesburg, Mrs. Elgy Wimp and daughter May, Mrs. Norman Roth, Mrs. Chris Kruspe, Mrs. Sadie Cooper and Mrs. Alice Devore.

The New Lenox Relief Organization held a business meeting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Doig. Mrs. Margaret Papke, the president, was in charge. Plans were made for a hard time party to be given in the school auditorium Monday night, November 21. All those who attend are asked to come dressed in old clothes, bringing a bundle of clothes or a pound of provisions used for the Thanksgiving baskets for the unemployed in the township as their admission. Guests are also asked to bring either coffee, doughnuts or sandwiches.

"The quickest way out!"

When a business transaction requires information from out-of-town, the quickest way to get the details and settle the matter is to telephone. Business men find Long Distance telephone service invaluable in selling, buying and conferring with out-of-town associates. Make use of this valuable, yet inexpensive service.

Measured by what it does for you—what, in home or office, costs so little as your telephone?

A REAL THANKSGIVING

THAT we have much cause for thankfulness this year is demonstrated by one point outside the realm of politics which President Hoover made in his acceptance speech last August.

"I should like to digress for one moment," he said, "for an observation on the past three years which should exhilarate the faith of all Americans—that is the profound growth of the sense of social responsibility which this depression has demonstrated. . . . Despite hardships, the devotion of our men and women to those in distress is demonstrated by the national averages of infant mortality, general mortality, and sickness, which are less today than in times of prosperity."

There's something real to be thankful for—that in spite of depression and unemployment the national health has improved—and a reason why we should celebrate a real Thanksgiving this year! The President's brief digression was no claim for any political party, but a hearty acknowledgment to you and me, to the men and women of all political parties, that the sense of responsibility for the welfare of our neighbor is not dead in this glorious land. That is something not only to be thankful for, but to feel a personal pride in, too. So let's have a real Thanksgiving celebration this year, and eat to the point of repletion, for once in a way. There will be Thanksgiving dinners for everyone, if we know our American public, but the one we are going to suggest is for the average American family which is celebrating this Day of Thankfulness this year.

Make It Simple

Have a big dinner, by all means, but make it simple and inexpensive in order to have more to share with those for whom such dinners are an event, and to live up personally to the President's words of praise. It can be just as merry and appetizing as in other years, but keep in mind the matter of expense. Here's the sort of menu that we would suggest:

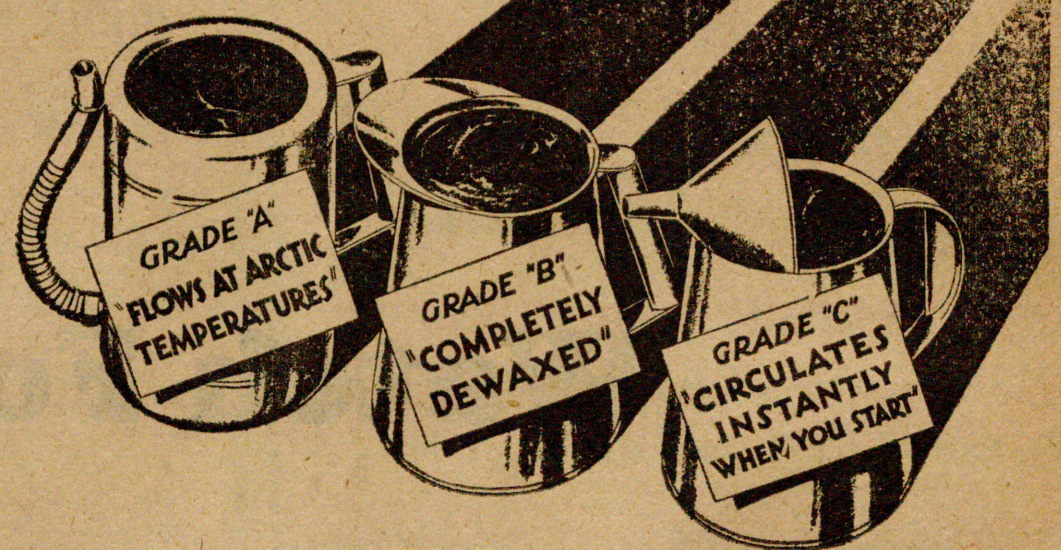

- Tomato Bouillon with Okra
- Bread Sticks
- Roast Turkey or Chicken with Sage Stuffing
- Browned Sweet Potato Balls
- Asparagus Hollandaise
- Thanksgiving Ice
- Dressed Mixed Salad Greens
- Cranberry and Raisin Pie
- Nuts
- Coffee
- Pulled Mints

If you keep your Thanksgiving dinner as simple as this, you'll have both plenty to eat and the further pleasure of having also plenty to share. Don't forget that there are many families which may have to do without Thanksgiving dinners if those who have more don't remember them. Here are the recipes for two of the dishes on this menu which you may not know how to make:

The Recipes

Tomato Bouillon with Okra: Combine the contents of a 12½ ounce can tomato juice with one can of bouillon, and the liquor from a one-pound can of asparagus, reserving the tips to be used in the asparagus Hollandaise. Add one cup water, the contents of a 9-ounce can of okra, thinly sliced, salt and pepper to taste, and a few drops of lemon juice. Heat thoroughly and serve in cups. Serves eight.

Thanksgiving Ice: Press the apricots from a No. 2 can through a sieve, and add one cup orange juice and four tablespoons lemon juice. Boil one-half cup sugar, three-fourths cup water and two tablespoons corn syrup for three or four minutes, and then dissolve in it two teaspoons gelatin soaked in four tablespoons cold water. Cool, add the fruit juices, and freeze in refrigerator trays, stirring often, or in a rotary freezer. Serve with the turkey or chicken. Serves eight.*

That's not Enough!

An Oil that Does Not Protect Your Engine from STARTING-WEAR is not Good Enough!

This Winter you'll be beseeched to use this, that and the other brand of motor oil because they are "dewaxed," "flow in zero weather" and "start circulating instantly." Which, technically speaking, means they have a "low cold test."

That's a good Winter quality. Most good oils have it.

But that's not enough! Your motor makes several thousand revolutions before the oil reaches all parts! Half of all your motor wear occurs during the starting period. Oils not made by the Germ Process drain away during idle periods, leaving your motor unprotected from terrific wear when you start. That's "half-way" lubrication!

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, too, is dewaxed and circulates freely at subzero temperatures. More important, it penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, leaving up in the motor a "Hidden Quart" that never drains away! The "Hidden Quart" cuts down costly starting-wear by lubricating your motor before you start. It makes starting easier, too. Unsolicited letters from motorists in all parts of the country say so.

Only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can give you this full Winter protection. Look for the Red Triangle next time you need oil.

This Mother Had Problem

As a rule, milk is about the best food for children, but there are times when they are much better off without it. It should always be left off when children show by feverish, fretful or cross spells, by bad breath, coated tongue, sallow skin, indigestion, biliousness, etc., that their stomach and bowels are out of order.

In cases like this, California Fig Syrup never fails to work wonders, by the quick and gentle way it removes all the souring waste which is causing the trouble, regulates the stomach and bowels and gives these organs tone and strength so they continue to act normally of their own accord. Children love its rich, fruity flavor and it's purely vegetable and harmless, even for babies.

Millions of mothers have proved its merit and reliability in over 50 years of steadily increasing use. A Western mother, Mrs. May Snavely, Montrose, California, says: "My little girl, Edna's, tendency to constipation was a problem to me until I began giving her California Fig Syrup. It helped her right away and soon her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. Since then I've never had to have any advice about her bowels. I have also used California Fig Syrup with my little boy, with equal success."

To be sure of getting the genuine, which physicians endorse, always ask for California Fig Syrup by the full name.

Trail for "Hikers"

As conceived by its proponents and already partly realized, the Appalachian trail is a footpath for hikers in the Appalachian mountains, extending from Maine to Georgia, a distance of some 1,300 miles. To the end of 1929 approximately 500 miles of this trail have been constructed, for the most part in New England, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia. The trail shuns automobile roads and lowlands, the purpose being to provide access to mountains and wild country of the eastern highlands for tramping, camping and outdoor recreation. Its route is the crest line of the Appalachian system, providing a skyline trail over mountain summits wherever the outlooks warrant and the ground permits the climb.

Duke Sociology Expert

The duke of York is a student of sociological matters and industrial welfare work in addition to being a fairly good mechanic, and his study at 145 Piccadilly is being revamped to meet his needs. It is a plainly furnished room on the third floor with a big flat-topped office desk flanked by steel filing cabinets. The bookshelves, now being extended, chiefly hold works about industrial welfare and sociological subjects. Under the bay window is a work bench fitted with a small lathe, which the duke uses in making wireless sets and small mechanical models.

No Kick Coming

"A woman out West is suing for $5,000 for the loss of a thumb," remarked Mrs. Grouch.

"Why does she want damages for the loss of that? She's still got her foot to keep her husband under, hasn't she?" growled Mr. Grouch.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson,
Illinois State Association, President

The opening of the Illinois waterway to navigation next spring has led several operators of water carriers on the Great Lakes to investigate the possibilities of designing and building barges capable of operating on the Great Lakes and in the waterway. Designs are being prepared for a 3,000-ton self-propelled barge for service on the Illinois waterway.

Miss Winifred Van Nooy, head of the reference department of the University of Chicago library, was chosen as president of the Illinois Library association at the thirty-sixth annual convention held in Springfield October 26, 27 and 28. Librarians from throughout the state, numbering more than three hundred, were in attendance.

The auction of $2,000,000 in road bonds, the last of the original $100,000,000 bond issue, has been sold to a syndicate of investment houses and banks for $1,983,500 on an average of $99.175 per hundred-dollar bond to yield 4.085 per cent. The sale of the bonds completes the sale of all the bonds in the two issues. Proceeds in the last sale will be expended before the end of the year in road work, Director Harry H. Cleveland states.

Mrs. Josephus Martin, fifty-eight years old, wife of a farmer, committed suicide in Paxton by jumping 30 feet from a viaduct crossing the Illinois Central tracks in the business section of the city. She had suffered a nervous breakdown and had been in ill health for some time.

The state will start work this fall on 13 of the 25 cabins to be rebuilt at Old Salem State park, where Lincoln was a young man a hundred years ago. Bids for these 13 cabins were called for November 1. Bids were also received on October 18 for a water pipe-line from Petersburg to the park to assure an abundant supply of water.

Approval has recently been given to 20 county highway road projects, involving a total expenditure of $482,322.54, by the state's bureau of county highway, according to an announcement made by Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer.

In the dairy herds of Illinois at the present time, there are only five heads of cattle infected with tuberculosis where there were seven just one year ago, and the average cost of the tests administered to detect this disease has been reduced from 50 to 42 cents per head within the past 12 months, according to information from the animal industry division of the state department of agriculture.

With a total of 10,727 penal wards, Illinois now has practically as many law violators in its penal institutions as has England and Wales, although it has only about one-sixth the general population of those two countries. That statement was made by Director Rodney H. Brandon, who was prompted to make the comparison when a report submitted to him by Col. Frank D. Whipp, acting warden of Joliet penitentiary, showed that institution reached its peak on October 18 with 4,874 inmates.

Through patient checking down clues for two months, Warden Charles T. McQuirk of the Chicago office of the state department of conservation has broken up what authorities consider a ring of Wisconsin poachers. Shipments of fish, supposed to have been illegally caught in nets in Wisconsin, were being shipped to Chicago fish markets.

The legislature reconvened in special session on October 25 and shortly thereafter recessed until November 15. At that time, the session probably will adjourn sine die unless there is unforeseen demand for added relief legislation. All bills passed by the general assembly to date have been signed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson.

The first opinion on the new gas-tax bill has been forwarded by Attorney General Oscar E. Carleton to A. J. Fish, executive secretary of the McDonough County Emergency Relief commission. The attorney general held that motor fuel taxes heretofore allotted to counties and not obligated for some of the other purposes for which such moneys may be expended, may be used for relief purposes.

Roy McKinney, Albert K. Fox and Charles Nichols, trustees of the Rock Island Aerie of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, were charged with violating the prohibition act in a criminal information filed by District Attorney Frank K. Lemon in United States District court in Peoria.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has authorized a loan of $6,303,150 to Illinois for unemployment relief for November. Of this sum, Chicago will receive $5,554,500. This will enable the Illinois Emergency Relief commission to restore the food rations which had to be reduced for October.

Success

The talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do, with out a thought of fame.—Longfellow.

Reiterating a former opinion, the Supreme court has held that all former stockholders of a state bank are liable up to the par value of their stock for all deposits made while they were stockholders, provided the deposits were not withdrawn up to the time the bank closed. In contrast to the former opinion, however, the court did not pass on the general question of the statute of limitations or the general question as to liability of heirs of former stockholders who have died.

Retail milk and cream prices were lowered two cents by the three largest dealers in Elgin. It was announced that the reduction was made necessary by "a general lowering of the retail scale" throughout the area.

Section 107 of the general corporations act of Illinois, requiring foreign corporations having issued capital stock in excess of $200,000,000 to pay an annual franchise fee of $1,000, has been held unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

The Illinois commerce commission has called in attorneys interested in the natural gas rate hearing now before that body and informed them that it desires to end the cases before it by November 15. The natural gas cases affect the city of Chicago and northern Illinois.

People who have not made a visit to Dickson Mound Builders' Tombs, between Havana and Lewistown, should motor there and see the greatest display of Stone age man in the world. There are 230 skeletons and possessions of a prehistoric people left in their original positions. It is estimated by leading archeologists to be one thousand or more years old. No one knows whence these people came or what caused their mysterious disappearance. These mounds should be purchased by the state of Illinois for a state park and perhaps will be.

The Supreme court made a record clean-up at its October term, filing opinions in 78 of the 91 cases on the advisement docket. Only 13 cases were held over, together with other appeals taken under advisement at the October term, which will be decided at a subsequent term. The court is now further advanced with its work than it has been for several years.

A complaint filed with the Interstate commerce commission by the Illinois coal traffic bureau, charges freight rates on bituminous coal, in carloads from Illinois mines to destinations in Wisconsin, Minnesota and Iowa are "excessive, unjust and unreasonable." The complaint further charges that the rates are unduly prejudicial against the complainants as compared with the rates from Indiana mines to the same destinations. The commission has been asked to make an investigation.

The Illinois Emergency Relief commission has made allocations to 62 counties for relief work during the period November 1 to 15. These counties included six to which allocations had not previously been made. The funds were distributed on a half-month basis, because counties will be expected to bring motor fuel funds into use for relief purposes by November 15, the commission has stated.

Power has been conferred upon the Reconstruction Finance corporation to aid in self-liquidating housing projects where such projects are authorized by state law and are subject to state supervision. Proposed legislation is now pending in the Illinois general assembly and will come up for consideration upon the reconvening of the two houses after November 8. The passage of such legislation will enable housing corporations to be organized in the state of Illinois and to obtain their proportionate share of federal funds to be employed in immediate building construction.

Arguments were heard recently by the Illinois commerce commission on the question of whether mixed trains shall carry freight cars before or in the rear of passenger coaches. The case was presented by the Chicago & Illinois Midland railroad and it also involves the question of whether the creation of the Illinois commerce commission repeals by implication a statute passed by the legislature in 1924. Carrying freight cars in the rear of passenger coaches is specifically prohibited by an Illinois statute which also provides a penalty for its violation.

Secretary of State William J. Stratton's contract with the National Color-type company of Bellevue, Ky., for 1933 motor vehicle license plates contains a provision that the booklets enclosed shall all be printed in Illinois by union labor and bear the union label, according to T. J. Hickey, chief clerk of the automobile department. Booklets which will be enclosed with the 400,000 sets of plates to be made in Statesville penitentiary also will be printed by Illinois union labor.

Largest Known Glaciers

The glaciers of Mt. Rainier, Washington, are said to comprise the largest glacial system in the Union. This system is composed of 28 glaciers of varying magnitude from small pockets of ice and perpetual snow to long tongues several miles in length that sweep down from the summit or from cirques just below the summit through narrow gorges to more moderate slopes near the base of the mountain. These glaciers in the aggregate are said to contain a surface measure of nearly 50 square miles.

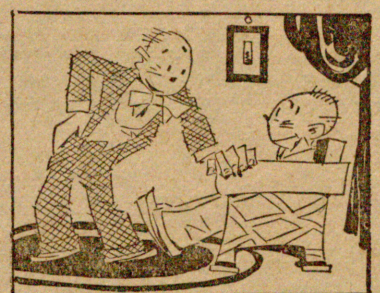

THE WEAK FISHERMAN

Richard Tallman, who caught a giant fish off Miami, told a fish story at a Miami luncheon.

"Bill Blankin," he said, "went on a fishing excursion to Barnegat bay after weakfish. The weakfish ran fine; all hands but Bill hauled in a good one every minute; and so an hour went by, then Bill growled:

"Hey, who's got a cork they can lend me? This bum one of mine has sunk again."—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

STEWARDSHIP OF MONEY

Deuteronomy 8:7-18; I Corinthians 16:1-4; II Corinthians 8:1-15; II Corinthians 9:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth.—Luke 12:15.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Sharing God's Gifts.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Use Money. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian's Use of Money.

I. Wealth Is from God (Deut. 8:7-18).

What we possess is God's gift.

1. The natural resources from which wealth is gained were prepared by God (vv. 7-17). This is true whether it be the fertile soil which produces our products, or the minerals, which are hidden away in the earth.

2. Ability to get wealth is from God (v. 18). The resources hidden away are valueless until seized upon and changed into usable commodities by man. The failure to recognize divine ownership of ourselves and possessions has wrecked the world. The sure way back to prosperity is to give recognition to God.

II. Obligation of Regular and Orderly Giving (I Cor. 16:1-4).

1. Everybody should give (v. 2). "Let every one of you lay by him in store." Giving of one's means should be engaged in by every believer. It is a grace which reacts to the benefit of the giver.

2. Giving should be systematic—every week (v. 2). The giving of small gifts weekly is easier than of larger gifts at less frequent intervals.

3. There should be proportionate giving (v. 2). "As God has prospered him." No one is obliged to give that which he does not have.

4. The compelling motive (v. 2). "The first day of the week." The first day of the week is designated because it is the day memorializing the resurrection of Christ. The reality of Christ's resurrection is the dynamic for Christian giving.

III. Examples of True Christian Giving (II Cor. 8:1-5).

The liberality of the Macedonian churches exhibits practically every grand principle and motive which enters into the giving which has God's sanction.

1. The source of true giving (v. 1). This is said to be the grace of God, by which is meant that the disposition to give freely of our money has been created by the Holy Spirit.

2. They gave from the depths of their poverty (v. 2). Their limited means did not cause them to stint in their giving.

3. Their willingness surpassed their ability (v. 3). God's gifts are reckoned by the degree of willingness, not by the amount given.

4. They were insistent upon being allowed the privilege of giving (v. 4). Christians ought to be taught that to share in the work of the Lord by giving money is their high privilege.

5. They first gave themselves to the Lord (v. 5). The only right method of raising money for the Lord is first to induce men and women to give their lives to the Lord, and then to give their possessions.

IV. Emulation in Giving Urged (II Cor. 8:6-15).

Moved by the generosity of the Macedonian churches, Paul desired Titus to commend to the Christians the same grace.

1. Not as a command (v. 8). Giving should be spontaneous.

2. As a proof of the sincerity of our love (v. 8).

3. As the completion and harmony of Christian character (v. 7). The Corinthian church abounded in spiritual gifts such as faith, knowledge, and utterance, but the grace of liberality was needed for the harmony of their lives. The stingy man is not symmetrical in character.

4. The self-sacrificing example of Christ (v. 9). Christ's example of self-denial and sacrifice is the supreme example of love.

5. The true principle of acceptable giving is a willing mind (vv. 1-12). God does not estimate the value of a gift on the ground of its intrinsic worth, but the underlying motive prompting it.

6. Because of a common equality (vv. 13-15). Every Christian should give something. The law governing the gift is his ability.

V. Inducements to Give (II Cor. 9:6-7).

1. The volume of reaping is based upon the sowing (v. 6).

2. There should be a heart purpose (v. 7).

RANDOM THOUGHTS

Hate kills everything that it touches.

In every sea of trouble Christ calms the waves.

The whole of human life is of interest to Christ.

God's great purpose in wanting men to give to him is that he may be enabled to give more abundantly to them.

Doctors Give Creosote For Dangerous Coughs

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creosolmulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements, quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creosolmulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creosolmulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creosolmulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creosolmulsion on hand for instant use. (adv.)

SYNOPSIS

From his fur post, Sunset House, in the Canadian north, Jim Stuart, trader in charge, sights an overturned canoe in the lake. With his headman, Omar, he rescues the drifter, who proves to be Aureole LeBlond, daughter of his rival in the fur business. Made comfortable at the post, Aureole proves to be a charming companion. Exchanging badinage, she and Jim arrange to exchange notes on a certain island. LeBlond, with Paradis, his unscrupulous half-breed lieutenant, arrives in search of the missing girl.

With a voice hoarse with feeling, he said, with a slight trace of accent: "Mr. Stuart, my daughter says she owes her life to you and your man."

As they faced him, the striking resemblance in feature and expression impressed the man who entered the room followed by Renault and Paradis. The girl was the true daughter of Louis LeBlond.

"Luckily, we happen to see her," deprecated Stuart.

"Yes, but she tells me that her strength was gone—she had already given up, when she saw you," LeBlond impulsively grasped the hand of the man who studied him. "We are rivals in business; it cannot be helped. But what you have done for my child I will not forget."

In a corner of the room the slim Paradis, dark as a half-breed, talked excitedly to the thick-set Renault, across whose swart face a knife slash had left a livid scar.

"It was nothing," replied Stuart. "I happened to see her canoe. That was all. You owe me nothing, sir." As he spoke, Paradis left Renault and whispered in LeBlond's ear.

"My house is at your disposal," continued Stuart. "Will you and your daughter stay here tonight?" The eyes of the speaker hardened as he went on. "The gentleman who is whispering to you, and Renault, here, are welcome to sleep in the tradehouse. You can't cross the lake against this wind."

The somewhat small but regular features of Paradis darkened in a scowl at the thrust, but he continued his whispering. Slowly a look of doubt—of perplexity—crept into LeBlond's eyes, but with a gesture of irritation he waved aside the insistent Paradis. Turning, he spoke rapidly in French to his daughter, who replied vehemently, her courageous black eyes flashing in anger as she faced her father.

"Mr. Stuart," said the patently embarrassed LeBlond, "you—a—found her in the afternoon?"

"Yes." In a flash Stuart sensed what was coming—what Paradis had been whispering.

"And you let us hunt the lake through six hours of daylight—hunt for her, thinking she was drowned?" LeBlond spoke more in regret than in anger.

"Why didn't you send word?" added Paradis with a sneer.

"Father!" The blood rose to Aureole LeBlond's temples. "Are you crazy? Do you know what you're saying? Is this your gratitude?" The eyes of the girl flamed with indignation. "Mr. Stuart wanted to take me home, but I wouldn't go. There was only the small canoe here, and I was afraid—afraid of that lake. And this is your thanks to him! Oh, I'm ashamed of you—ashamed of you all!"

The enraged factor of Sunset House was near the end of his self-control as he faced LeBlond. "You see fit to quibble over my actions today. I've nothing to explain. You found out what the lake was out there, when you crossed with the wind in your big canoe. My large boats are bringing up my stuff, and I'm alone with one man. I don't like your insinuations! You can't take your daughter back to night, and I offered you my quarters—such as they are. But, as for this whispering assistant of yours, I take back my offer. He can't stay here!" The speaker's voice snapped like a brittle stick. "You understand English, don't you, Paradis?"

The room was silent. In the glance of the girl as she watched Jim's eyes blacken with anger, was amusement and approval.

With a swift movement the enraged Paradis jerked his hand back to his belt; but the squat Renault's fingers gripped his arm. The working features of LeBlond reflected his warring emotions. This man who had saved his daughter had also flagrantly affronted his friend. For a space his sense of gratitude and his loyalty to Paradis strove for mastery as he looked into the cold eyes which challenged his. Then he found his voice.

"You have insulted us, here, in your own house!" he burst out. "We want no hospitality from you." Then, as if ashamed, went on: "Oh, I'm grateful—I know what I owe you; but we'll bid you good-night. Come Aureole!"

His answer from the girl was contemptuous laughter. "Oh, you men are so funny—so funny!" she cried. "So ridiculous! Because Mr. Stuart knocks down our Paul Paradis, and Paul fills your ears with a fool idea of word not being sent ten miles against that wind and sea, you forget that I'd be down there with the fish tonight if it hadn't been for Omar and Mr. Stuart. Pah! You men are all fools!"

She was serious now, her scornful gaze over-awing her father's uneasy eyes. In frank admiration Stuart watched her as she waited for LeBlond's reply.

"I thank you for what you did for her," said LeBlond at length, turning defeated from the accusing eyes of his daughter. "Come, Aureole!"

Paradis and Renault sullenly left the room while the trader waited at the door for the girl who had not moved.

"So you think, because of the hurt feelings of your pretty Paul, I'll spend the night in front of a fire, with my back against a tree?" she replied. "Well, I will not!"

Over the bold features of LeBlond crept an expression of helplessness—of impotence. It was patent to Stuart that this trader, whose energy and determination were bywords in the fur trade, was not the master of the girl who now faced him.

"I shall accept Mr. Stuart's offered hospitality," she continued. "As for you, mon pere, you can stay and help old Sarah, the cook, guard the sacred honor of your precious daughter—or you can leave her to Sarah and go and sit by your fire. I stay here. Do you understand English, Monsieur LeBlond?"

"And This Is Your Thanks to Him! Oh, I'm Ashamed of You—Ashamed of You All!"

In the end, LeBlond and his daughter passed the night in the quarters of Stuart while the indignant Sarah tossed through sleepless hours, outraged by the thought that the roof above her should shelter the enemy who had boasted that the wolves should soon howl in the deserted clearing of Sunset House.

CHAPTER II

Six years before, when the boat brigade of the North-West Trading company, in command of one of the partners, Louis LeBlond, had passed through Lake Expansé on the trail to Mitawagagama, the Ojibwa, who were camped at Pelican portage on the way south to the spring trade with the Hudson's Bay company, had been greatly excited. Turning in to the camp, LeBlond's head voyageur, Black Jules Renault, had announced in his native tongue that a trading station was to be built on the great Lake of the Sand Beaches two hundred miles north. Never again need they take the long trail south to Lake Expansé, but in the next long snows would find a warm welcome—a New Year's feast—and the best of trade goods ready for exchange for their fur at the new post.

In three years LeBlond had made serious inroads into the trade of the old company. He no longer could be

Goat Ranked Above Cow in Mountainous Lands

Although they keep themselves distinct and appear to affect disdain one for the other, sheep and goats are, and apparently always have been pastured together, the goats eating the brush and roughage which the more tender-mouthed sheep will not touch.

In rough, rocky mountainous districts as is a great part of the land of Canada, the goat is a more serviceable animal than the cow, more agile and wonderfully sure footed, content to wander about and pick a mouthful here and there, able to live without much more moisture than the heavy dew supply, long-lived, and generally free from sickness, especially from contagious diseases. They thrive best in the higher altitudes, and the wild varieties which existed until comparatively recent days in Syria and about the Palestinian Lebanon, are always sought on mountain tops. As the Psalmist says: "The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats." It is worth noting that among all his riches of flocks and herds, Job counted no goats, as was to be expected, since he lived on an Arabian plain where was abundant pasture for his "fourteen thousand sheep and six thousand camels, and a thousand yoke of oxen, and a thousand she asses," (Job 29:12) as well doubtless as immense numbers of cows.

Favored German Spot

The unusually beautiful scenery of the Hartz mountains in Germany and the plentiful variety of wild game are said to be great attractions to visitors. Elk, roe, fallow deer, wild swine and sheep come from the hills to feed on horse chestnuts, acorns, carrots and hay provided by the foresters on the hunting preserves.

ignored. They must follow and fight him for the trade. But, on the word of hard-headed Andrew Christie, of Lake Expansé, inspector of a territory larger than an eastern state, the man who could now wrest a share of the trade from the firmly entrenched LeBlond would need a particularly long head, boundless nerve, and the tenacity of the beaver. Such a man, Christie told his superiors, in conclave at Winnipeg, he believed was now at God's lake in western Kiviedin—a young man with a fine war record and a local reputation for ability and judgment in dealing with the Indians.

In two months a mail canoe brought Jim Stuart orders from Winnipeg to report to Christie at Lake Expansé. A month later, with Omar Boisvert and a gang of men, Stuart had cleared the forest and was peeling the logs for the building of Sunset House. The following three years had been for Stuart a well-nigh hopeless struggle for a foothold in the trade, for his rival possessed the Frenchman's uncanny talent for handling the Indians, backed by an experience of thirty years.

As he lay on his bunk in the tradehouse, after leaving Aureole LeBlond and her father in possession of his quarters, Jim Stuart's thoughts traversed the hours since mid-afternoon. To the man who, since the war, had been marooned in the forests of Kiviedin—Ojibwa for "The Birthplace of the North Wind,"—the coming of this vivid creature, swept into his life by the accident of wind and sea, had been like the burst of a shell on a black night.

But strong as was the appeal of this dark daughter of Louis LeBlond to the eyes and senses of the man who had not seen three comely white women in as many years, she was, he realized, only a spoiled child; vain, headstrong, the pampered darling of a lonely father. Then his thoughts shifted to Mary Christie, the loyal, capable girl at Lake Expansé, who ministered with head and hands to the well-being and comfort of his chief, Andrew Christie, and who, except for five years' schooling in Scotland, had spent her life, without complaint, immersed in the northern forests. He pictured her frank disdain of the dress and manners of the girl who slept over in his quarters—her outraged sense of propriety at the direct thought and speech of this self-possessed daughter of the free trader. She wouldn't understand this girl—would condemn her on sight as over-bold, light, unwomanly. But no one who had seen Aureole LeBlond grimly refusing to be swept from her grip on that canoe, as the seas buried her, could doubt the metal of her courage. She had proven that. Then he found himself comparing the blond comeliness of the decorous daughter of Andrew Christie with the dark loveliness of Aureole LeBlond.

The following morning Stuart walked with his guest to the beach where LeBlond had preceded them to his waiting canoe.

"I really think you about won Sarah over, when you patted her around her neck," he said. "I know Sarah pretty well, and the way that grin slowly widened across her face when you gave her the scarf and shook her hand makes me think she's forgiven you your gibedgewagon. Though, of course, she wouldn't admit it."

"She thinks me insane, probably."

"She didn't know what to think."

Then, as they approached the shore, she said, hurriedly: "The split rock on the shore of the last of the islands—look there in a few days; you might find something. Good-by, Mr. Jeem Stuart." She gave him her hand.

"Good-by, Miss Ghibodlegwason." When LeBlond stepped into his big freight canoe he said to Stuart: "I thank you again for what you have done. Your people have seen fit to send you here to take the trade from me. Between the North-West and the Hudson's Bay there can be no quarter. But to you, yourself, I owe much. Some day I may be able to repay."

As the factor of Sunset House watched the departing pitebore nose an ever-widening ripple out across the still lake which now mirrored the hills—for the wind had dropped in the night to a flat calm—a voice at his side roused him from his thoughts.

"We got a beeg job ahead, dis summer."

Stuart looked into the grave face of Omar. "We have, Omar, but I wish I knew where to begin. They heard at Lake Expansé that LeBlond got thirty-thousand dollars worth of fur from Pipestone lake and the Sturgeon river country alone, this year. We didn't get a pelt—not one hunter from that country!"

"I hear, last night, something about dat."

"You did? How d'yuh mean—heard?"

"De men wid de cano' talk w'ile LeBlond go to de house for de girl. Dey talk about Jingwak."

"Jingwak, the medicine man at Pipestone lake?"

"Ah-hah, you know how he get all de hunter to trade wid LeBlond—not one come to Sunset House?"

"No, but I'd like to," said the interested Stuart.

"Wal—Jingwak tell all dem peop' dat dis place ees full of devil. I find dis out, for one of dat crew had fear to stay on de beach."

Slowly the blood filled the bronzed face of the man who listened.

"So they are bribing the medicine men, the conjurers, are they, to keep the trade from Sunset House?"

It was clever of LeBlond, for the Pipestone Ojibwas, who came two hundred miles south to trade, were a wild, superstitious lot, easily influenced by a medicine man—a shaman. "What you tink of dat?" demanded the half-breed. "I tell you we got good job ahead, dis summer, w'en we get de trade stuff up from Lak' Expansé."

"Omar, we've got to get some of that Pipestone and Sturgeon river trade. We can't live on what we get from the rest of the country. What're we going to do?"

The swart Boisvert rose from his squatting position. He was not tall, but his Scotch and French blood had united with the Ojibwa to create a rare example of nature's skill in the building of human thew and muscle; for in his compact one hundred and eighty pounds Omar carried power and stamina which had been a byword among the voyageurs of western Kiviedin. Deliberately reaching to the rear, the half-breed drew his skinning knife and, lifting a foot, stropped the blade slowly on his moccasin. "Dere ees one t'ing we can do wid M'sieu' Jingwak," he said, significantly.

"You old wolf," laughed Stuart, "I believe, if I said the word, you'd hunt him down this summer and stick that in him."

Omar's small eyes met his chief's cryptically as he said: "Dere are manee way to kech a fox."

"Yes, and we must find one to beat this Jingwak; but we can't hurt him, you know. There are laws in this country."

"Law? Umph!" grunted Omar. "We got do something ver' queer!"

"We have, Omar," admitted Stuart. "If I'm licked here, I might as well look for a new job. The Company'll never forgive me. Christie knows what the job is here, but he's not satisfied with the small trade this year."

With an impulsive movement Boisvert grasped the hand of the younger man. "We not tru yet! Dis summer we go to Pipestone lake."

Two days later, with the freight boats from Lake Expansé which carried the next year's supplies and trade goods for the little post and had been windbound at the head of the lake, came Esau Otchig, whose shoulders had rounded and lean face creased with furrows in the service of the company—old Esau, a full-blooded Ojibwa, who had served thirty years with Stuart's father and now followed the fortunes of the son. To the Indian, when the supplies were unloaded and the empty freighters had started back on the trail south, Omar related what he had overheard on the beach—how the hunters from the Pipestone country had been kept from trading at Sunset House by the tabu of the shaman, Jingwak.

"Ah-hah!" Esau muttered. "So dis Jingwak put de devil into Sunset House. Wal, we put de devil into Jingwak."

"Good!" agreed Stuart, "but how?" Esau's beady eyes met the widening grin of Omar as he answered: "Omar eavil tell you w'at happen to Makwa, de beeg shaman at Wolf riviere, manee long snow back?"

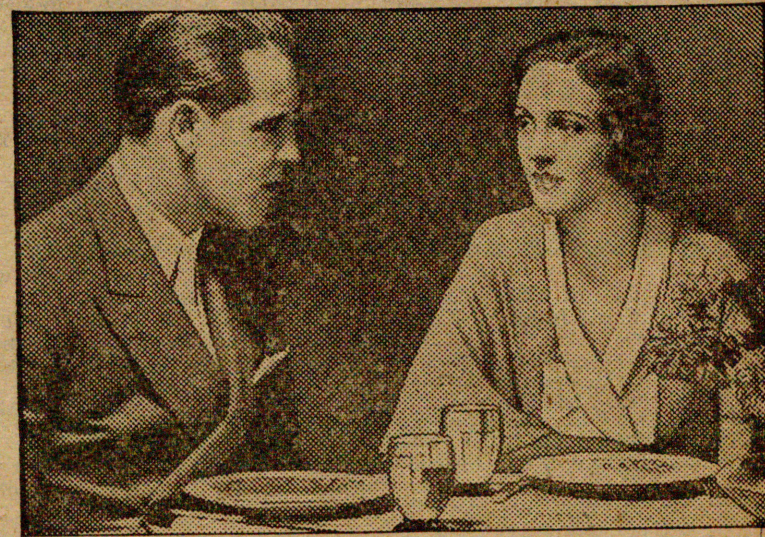

Stuart shook his head. "No, what happened?"

"Dis Makwa, he t'ink he mak' de beeg medicine. He come an' say to de ole man at Wolf riviere, 'You geeve Makwa, de shaman, flour, tea, trade good, an' you get all J'ibwa fur. You not geeve Makwa dis, an' free-trader, he get de fur.'"

"What did the Hudson's Bay man say to that?"

Get Rid of a Bad Headache in Few Minutes

Because of Quick Dissolving Property BAYER ASPIRIN Starts "Taking Hold" 3 or 4 Minutes After Taking

Due to important, scientific developments in the world-famous Bayer laboratories, almost INSTANT relief from headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains is being afforded millions.

Because of a unique process in making and tableting, Genuine Bayer Aspirin is made to dissolve almost INSTANTLY in the stomach. Hence it starts to work almost instantly. And thus "takes hold" of the average pain or headache in as little as three or four minutes after taking. The fastest, safe relief, it is said, ever known for pain.

NO TABLETS ARE GENUINE BAYER ASPIRIN WITHOUT THIS CROSS

THINGS MADE EASY FOR "AVERAGE" MAN

Is Properly Designated as "Lucky Dog."

"The average man, whom the orators, and especially the demagogues, imagine for the purpose of supporting their theories, and on whom they expend so much sympathy and admiration, does not, of course, exist," said Mr. Cato Ninetails. "There are all kinds of men, with all kinds of ideas, or lack of them, but these can't be reduced to one man with an average point of view. Nevertheless, there are averages of all kinds, and they are a great convenience in maintaining the orderliness of the world."

"Men may be of average intelligence, and yet think not at all alike, and certainly they may be of average size and weight and strength. Nobody knows this better than the manufacturers of goods for human needs, and they make their measurements accordingly. The unusually big man or the unusually small man may sometimes have some difficulty in finding articles exactly adapted to his bulk and stature; such things are provided, but they may require a little search. It is not so with the average-size man. Whatever he wants he finds spread before him by the emporiums in such variety that any taste, or lack of it, may be suited."

"Nor does art, so called, neglect the average mentality, however variable may be its thoughts. Dramatists, scenario writers, poets, novelists, and even historians take it so seriously into consideration that their works sometimes yield profits that it is hard for the judicious to understand. Then there is the average conduct, which is more or less taken into consideration in the making of laws, for when it is ignored, it is ignored at the law's peril."

"Perfection, of course, is achieved by none, but most of us behave ourselves pretty well most of the time, and so enjoy the security of the average. Those who don't are not average, and so risk penalties whether they suffer them or not."

"Most of the institutions of the world are designed for average people; the schools, higher and lower, are organized for average pupils and students, the churches for the average congregations. Those who are superior to the average may be hampered; those who are inferior to it must be lifted—if possible; but the average is the measure that shows what's what and who's who. "So considered in all its aspects the world is designed, maintained and operated for the benefit of the average man; that is to say, the man of average physique and mentality, who exists, and not the man of average opinions, who is a mere oratorical convenience. In such a world inferiority is to be pitied, and it is not only pitied, but provision is made that it may be as comfortable as possible; but I seriously doubt if superiority is to be envied. Its very qualities inevitably bring upon it burdens and responsibilities. These it should bear—and does bear—because of its special strength and ability; but it seems to me that generally they are onerous out of proportion to the rewards they yield."

"Buck," I said, the other day, "what would you call an average man?" "A mighty lucky dog," he declared.—Indianapolis News.

AIRPLANE MAPS ROUTE FOR TELEPHONE CABLE

Aerial Survey Saves Time and Labor in Picking Best Path

To determine the shortest and most efficient route over a rugged 100-mile stretch of Wisconsin country for a long distance telephone cable, an aerial survey was recently made. The direction lay east and west of Eau Claire, between Neillsville and Baldwin.

Difficult Exploration Avoided

By the use of an airplane to decide upon the best route, the necessity of running preliminary lines through wooded sections of country was largely eliminated, field forces were aided in their location and staking work and negotiations with property owners were facilitated. The country through which the line was run was in part heavily wooded, with swamps and peat beds, and in some areas the roads were fifteen miles apart, and no United States topographical maps were available for the region.

A preliminary survey of the several possible routes was made by automobile. Maps were then made and photographs of the entire area were taken from an airplane. These photographs were then assembled into a map of uniform scale, and as the center portion of each exposure is the only area which could be used with safety in delineating the map a sixty per cent overlap became necessary. The aerial camera was similar to that used by the United States Government in taking aerial photographs.

Locates Shortest Route at Once

It was found, as a result of this undertaking, that aerial surveying of telephone lines permits appreciable savings to be effected in both the selection of the route and in locating work, particularly in sections where either swamps or areas overgrown with underbrush prevail. In such type of country it is impossible to see for any great distance on the ground, and so most difficult to select accurately the shortest route and at the same time avoid unfavorable construction and maintenance conditions.

Eight Big Days at Stock Show

Every moment of the eight big days of Chicago's mammoth live stock show, the International Live Stock Exposition, will be crowded with scores of events of interest, fascination, and entertainment, Secretary-Manager B. H. Heide assures. It will be held this year from November 26 to December 3, opening, as in past years, on the Saturday after Thanksgiving day in its permanent home at the entrance to the Chicago Stock Yards.

Railroads Reduce Fares
Railroads entering Chicago have indicated that special round trip low fares will be offered during the week of the Exposition. Low fares will be granted from nearly every part of the country, with rate reductions ranging all the way from a fare and a half for the round trip to a round trip for the price of a one way ticket. In addition, special week-end coach excursions will be offered to the Exposition at much greater fare reductions.

The big event of the opening day, Saturday, November 26, will be the Junior Live Stock Feeding Contest. Farm boys and girls between the age of 10 and 20 years will be here from many states to exhibit baby beefs, lambs, and pigs of their own feeding and fitting, most of which have been state and county fair prize winners this year.

Livestockmen from far and near will be at the ringside on Monday morning to watch Walter Biggar, of Dalbeattie, Scotland, begin his tremendous task of judging the steers, which for years have been the largest assembly of top notch beefs seen at any livestock show in the world.

From Monday to the close of the Exposition at the end of the week, the huge International arena and judging rings will be the setting of parades of the monarchs of the American livestock world, each striving for a place on the prize lists of this climax of the year's live stock shows.

Two Sunday Horse Shows

For the first time a full entertainment program will be given on Sunday, November 27. The management announces that both matinee and evening Horse Shows will be held on that day.

One of the features of the Monday night Horse Show, November 28, will be a parade of 4-H Club boys and girls who will be here from 43 states. Spectacular auction sales of breeding cattle and the choicest of prime meat animals in the land will be held the closing days of the big show.

Fish for Dinner? A Telephone Call to Sea May Start It on Its Way to You

Upper left: Diagram of path of telephone call between Fish Pier, Boston, and fishing vessel off Georges Banks. Upper right: Interior of radio telephone station at Green Harbor, Mass. Left: One of the crew aboard ship talks with shore. Above: A beam trawler, carrying ship-to-shore telephone equipment, in Boston Harbor.

Ship-to-shore telephone service with ocean liners has been available since 1929, and the number of ships equipped for this service is at present more than a dozen. Now fishing vessels on the grounds off Georges Banks, and other coastal shipping, may also talk with telephones ashore, by means of equipment especially adapted in simplicity and ruggedness to meet the severe requirements for service aboard these sturdy little vessels. Basically, this equipment is similar to that used on airplanes in maintaining two-way telephonic communication with ground stations.

Call Sounded Fishy to Her

Last summer three beam trawlers—those chunky fishermen which represent the machine era in an age-old industry—put out from their home port of Boston carrying with them the apparatus to enable them to keep in voice contact with their offices in Boston as readily as one business man might call another in the same city. Their masters could report the day's catch, receive orders for their return to Fish Pier in Boston in time for the best market conditions, and generally keep in close contact with headquarters.

In fact, over their radio telephone equipment conversation may be held with any Bell System telephone. On the first trip after the equipment had been installed, calls were made to various parts of the country.

Eager for the experience of talking from his ship to land, the cook of one of the vessels called up his wife, who immediately accused him of having gone on a spree in East Boston and missed his boat, since she refused to believe that he was talking to her from a couple of hundred miles off shore. The chief engineer had similar difficulty in convincing his sweetheart that he was calling her from his ship at sea. She was in Seattle, Wash., however, which added the distance of a continent to the marvel of the call.

This particular marine radio telephone service is designed for craft that cruise within a few hundred miles of the New England coast. It marks the entry of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company into the radio telephone field, since ship-to-shore radio telephone service for ocean liners and the transoceanic radio telephone circuits are operated by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Radio Station at Green Harbor

The New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's transmitting and receiving station is located at Green Harbor, Mass. Here steel towers 165 feet tall support the transmitting antenna, while the receiving antenna is 500 feet away.

Nearby is a building housing the transmitting and receiving equipment, the voice terminal equipment required for connecting with the land telephone system, and provision for the necessary power supply.

A call for one of the vessels now equipped reaches the Boston toll office and is routed to the Marine Service operator. Through the Green Harbor radio telephone station she sends out a signal which is heard on board the ship. The captain, or whoever is in the pilot house or at the location of the telephone, picks up the hand telephone, and by pushing a button while talking and releasing it to listen carries on the conversation. A call from a vessel reverses this route.

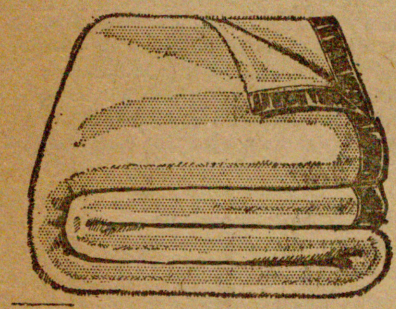

Will Serve All Coastal Ships

While this ship-to-shore service is being demonstrated first to fishermen, in order to prove its reliability under thoroughly practical conditions, it is by no means confined to this class of shipping, and should be equally useful to pilot boats, tug boats, tankers, coastal steamers, yachts, and all types of vessels plying within two or three hundred miles of the Green Harbor station.

The provision of similar limited-range ship-to-shore telephone service at certain other busy ports on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts is probably only a matter of time.
